

HD Microsystems L.L.C. - CTPAT Statement of Support

HD Microsystems, L.L.C. (HDM) is a Certified Customs Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (CTPAT) member. CTPAT is a voluntary partnership between the U.S. government and trade industry partners, with a common goal of maintaining a secure and safe global supply chain landscape. The present global trade environment faces new and evolving threats and challenges. Each of us has a responsibility to understand and implement CPTAT criteria. HD Microsystems is committed to the development and adherence to the highest standard of security practices that encompass our business activities. It is our goal to foster a culture of security awareness to strengthen the international supply chain. This program mitigates the risks of threats, contraband, terrorism and human trafficking for U.S. inbound trade operations through specific criteria.

HDM's international suppliers and business partners play a key role within the company's supply chain security. We encourage our suppliers and business partners to integrate security measures into their facilities and cargo processes. This partnership is an integral part of HDM's supply chain security. As an importer, we hold our suppliers and business partners accountable for meeting a high level of security practices, helping us to remain competitive and strengthen global supply chain security.

HD Microsystems L.L.C. Leadership

Signature:

John R. Malloy, Jr., HDMA Business Lead